How to choose structurally-safe condos

By Tessa R. Salazar

STRUCTURAL EXPERTS SAY that condominium buildings are designed by architects and engineers based on sound engineering standards.

Inquirer Property recently talked to a structural engineer and an architect who gave assurances that the majority of new condominiums in the Philippines are inherently safe structurally.

Gideon Javier, project management director of Colliers International, said the practice of employing and regulating structural engineers in the country is "very strict."

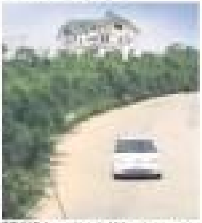

Architect Roy Mercilla, vice president of Steel Building Systems and Technologies, said a contractor or a developer will not be given the proper occupancy permit by the local government if the building has not been constructed in accordance with plans and specifications.

The question is, should buyers take all these things for granted?

Javier and Mercilla said buyers—and the public in general—don't have to be clueless even if they are not that knowledgeable in engineering or architecture.

Fashion mavens declare fashion emergency

THE ARTISTS'S FASHION BARONS HAVE DE- clared a moratorium on the color black.

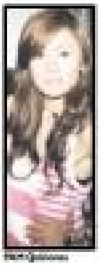

"The reason behind the ban" [illegible]

Believe it or not, [illegible] of Filipinos suffer from dandruff. With that much embarrassment floating around, black clothing—so many love flaunting—is just a disaster waiting to happen.

"Because this dandruff epidemic remains unchecked, we feel compelled to make sure that every member of fashionable Manila will be spared this embarrassment—and if here, all things black will have to remain at the back of our closets," reads the fashion manifesto [illegible] fashion mavens signed.

While a great outfit will get you far in the realm of fashion, a true sense of style demands attention to detail. This includes making sure that the flaky white curse will not ruin a black ensemble or cause to severe shame again.

As a result, the country's most notable fashion experts, stylists and insiders are campaigning for a ban on Black, until such time that fashionable Manila will be given a clear solution.

In recognition of the fact that [illegible] out of [illegible] Filipinos suffering from dandruff are likely to take their style cues from the style's [illegible], [illegible], they are making a concerted effort to jolt the public to recognize this long-standing dandruff dilemma.

The Making of Miggy

By [illegible]

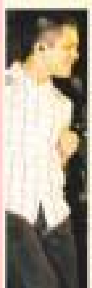

IT IS THE PEOPLE around him that singer songwriter Miguel [illegible] holds responsible for inspiring him to play music. Born to a family of musicians, 25-year-old Miggy grew up with a drum-playing father, an opera singer as an older sister, two piano-playing sisters and a guitar-playing younger brother. He even credits [illegible] as an influential player in his career. "Their song 'Mamaa' was one of the songs that truly influenced me into wanting to play guitar. It was the very first song I listened." But he started showing interest in music only in 1999, when he was a freshman in high school. "That was when I started learning how to play the guitar, thanks to the help and influence of my peers. And as I learned the guitar, I sang along to the songs I played as well. I started performing in high school. I was in a band with several of my batch mates in Southridge. We'd play alternative rock songs of our favorite artists. I guess it started because of our common interest and passion for music."

Sadly the road to band stardom ended in college when they went to different schools [illegible]
